Lights flash and alarms blare scaring you half to death. This was surely "le coup fatal" (the fatal blow) to Richard's weak heart. It means the murderer did not need to be present to complete the act. But even Richard's weak heart needed more than just a good scare.

*Roughly here, the detective returns stating the article was fake. The article which appeared to be from a prominent business news source claimed Richard was involved in illegal activity and was going to be arrested. This got Richard both angry and worried, raising his blood pressure and preparing him for the fatal blow. The last step for opportunity is to figure out who created the fake article. Opportunity 3 of 4

*Roughly about here the detective returns stating the medicine was fake and made of chalk. By switching the heart medication for chalk, Richard had not been taking his necessary blood pressure medication for weeks. Silently to Richard, his blood pressure had reached a dangerous state making it easy to raise his blood pressure then deliver a final blow to kill him. But who had the means to make fake medication? Means 1 of 4

TAKE RECORDS

READ RECORDS (Also, take a look at ITEM-03 in Game Items folder)

Reading the records you learn Dupont's artwork makes very little profit compared to others. This hints at the affair Richard and Dupont were having. Richard obviously saw more in Dupont than he did her artwork. This caused friction between Richard and his business partner James Blackwood. However, not even that James would kill over it.

Note, in the gallery workshop are materials similar to the ones used to make the puzzle box "Le coup fatal". There are blue and red gel filters for the strobe lights, there are speaker wires and even white chalk for the fake medication. Dupont's things and she is capable of using mixed media to build quite intricate work. Need to prove it though.

LOOK AT ENIGMA

You find the word DEATH hidden in the painting using the RED + BLUE FILTERS together. The 4 hidden messages provide the motive in a form of written confession. Dupont first DESIRED Richard for herself. Second, she fell in LOVE with Richard during their affair. Third she felt BETRAYED by Richard when he wouldn't leave Victoria. Finally, Richard's DEATH was retribution for a woman scorned. Motive 4 of 4

DRIVE TO HOUSE

We suspect it's Dupont at this point. Look for her in the house to see what she says. After finding her...

SHOW ARTICLE TO DUPONT

Dupont is the only person to claim to have read the fake article when shown it. That is because she created it.

Opportunity 4 of 4

If you haven't yet received the analysis back from the metal device then waste time by entering LOOK until the detective returns with the analysis. If Dupont leaves the room, follow her so you don't need to find her later.

*Once the detective returns with analysis, he shares that the metal device is actually a pill press with remnants of white chalk and the handle has Dupont's fingerprints. Additionally, it was found hidden in her sculpture. Means 4 of 4

You now have all of the Means, Motive and Opportunity needed to accuse Dupont.

ACCUSE DUPONT

Dupont quickly laughs it off as an absurd suggestion, exclaiming that Richard was the love of her life and was going to marry her.

You explain in detail her motive found hidden within her paintings.

Dupont appears rattled, but remains silent.

You then explain she had the means. Richard had been taking fake medication created using a pill press that not only has her fingerprints all over it but was discovered hidden within her own sculpture.

Shaken, Dupont nervously tries to explain how her "real" use of the pill press was for "artistic purposes." She then leans hard into the fact that Richard died of a heart attack while she was nowhere near his home.

Finally, you explain how she had the opportunity. The fake newspaper article that only she recognized. Then, her fatal blow took the form of a deceptively artistic, yet blaring, puzzle box that triggered his heart attack.

Dupont begins to sob, screaming that Richard was a liar who destroyed her heart and got exactly what he deserved.

Upon hearing this confession, two police officers rush over to make the arrest.

Dupont is led away in handcuffs.
